Re: Water Rights Nos. 73-00042; 73-00157; 73-00158; 73-2102;
73-2153.

The foregoing water rights embrace places of use that at least partially coincide. The aggregate flow rate from all such water rights exceeds a one (1) miner's inch of water per acre measurement for these overlapping acres. However, this aggregate flow rate nonetheless answers to the reasonable requirements of irrigating this place of use in light of the peculiar circumstances reflected by the priority of these water rights, and the topographic and geologic features of the place of use.

Water Right No. 73-00042 provides a source of supply for 587 acres of flood irrigated and subirrigated land. Approximately 306 acres of this place of use are located on the north side of the river, and about 281 acres are located on the south side of the river. All other of the above-described water rights embrace this 281 acres on the south side of the river as their place of use.

Notwithstanding the nominally high diversion rate for this acreage on the south side of the river, it is nonetheless required for the effective irrigation of this acreage. All these lands have a very irregular topography and the application efficiency can only amount to approximately 20 percent.

Moreover, some of the rights are relatively junior, so it is unlikely they will be in priority during those periods of peak moisture demand in late summer months. Hence, a premium is placed on relatively high diversion rates so the soil profile can be wetted to field capacity at the cessation of spring runoff.

Finally, the diversion point for some of these rights is a relatively long distance from the place of use, and therefore there are relatively high amounts of seepage losses in transporting the water to the place of use.
