

Sept. 27 - 2003

I remember when I was 6 or 7 years of age 1929 or 30, going to the lettuce patch North of the barn across the bank of the upper pond which had two ditches running out of it. One to the north which watered a lettuce patch and in a field called the timothy patch. Another ditch running out of the East side of the pond, watered a pastureⁱⁿ which we put the milk cows of a night.

I remember going to the lettuce patch in the early evening some times when they were cutting & trimming the lettuce & putting it in wood boxes, and putting the boxes on the truck to haul to some of the stores in Idaho Falls very early in the morning.

In 1941 when I left the ranch the ditches were still there and still in use.

Phyllis E. Day Richter