Re: Irrigated Acres

This claim was originally filed by Clifton Terrell, who indicated that he was only irrigating 17 of the original 25 irrigated acres licensed.

The GIS contractor identified about 15 acres of irrigation, but the resolution is poor.

Today the new owner, Mr. Rashid Bisharat, amended the claim to include all the original acres. Mr. Bisharat believes that there are more irrigated acres that either Mr. Terrell claimed or the contractor identified.

There may be an issue of partial forfeiture and resumption, but I explained to Mr. Bisharat that our current instructions are to recommend the acres we find on field inspection, if they are within the original licensed acres. If there is an issue of forfeiture, any one who might be injured still has the opportunity to object to the recommendation.

I told Mr. Bisharat that I expected we would do the field inspection in the summer of 2001 to determine the present irrigated acreage. Mr. Bisharat requests that we delay our inspection as long as possible, as he has just purchased the property and is working on some things that have been neglected by the former owner.
