Water Right No. 37-2411A
College of Southern Idaho

Answer to E.

There is no justification for over one inch per acre. Measuring devices were not in place in 1987 and there are no reliable records showing over one inch per acre has historically been used. Reliable measuring devices still do not exist. Decker Springs is over appropriated and granting over one inch per acre, which is more than can be put to beneficial use, will deprive others of their water rights.

Aerial photos show this was not irrigated in 1987 and it does not appear it was irrigated in the five years prior to 1987. An irrigation system was put in around 2,000. This water was put to beneficial use by other water rights after it was not used for over five years. An irrigation system was put in about the year 2,000 and irrigation resumed.
