E. REASONS SUPPORTING OBJECTION(S):

GENERAL DENIAL

For the reasons described below, the State of Idaho denies that the United States has taken any action sufficient under the law for the creation of the claimed federal reserved water right for purposes of irrigation, commercial, industrial, and domestic uses.

The United States Supreme Court has characterized the federal reserved water right as the exception to the general rule regarding compliance with state water law. The Court stated:

Each time this Court has applied the 'implied-reservation-of-water doctrine,' it has carefully examined both the asserted water right and the specific purposes for which the land was reserved, and concluded that without the water the purposes of the reservation would be entirely defeated.

United States v. New Mexico, 438 U.S. 696, 700; 98 S.Ct. 3012, 3014; 57 L.Ed.2d 1052, 1057 (Footnote omitted). The Court went on to state two reasons for this careful examination. The water right is implied, rather than express, and congress has a long history of deferring to state water law when it has expressly addressed the question of whether the federal must comply with state water law. Id. 438 U.S. at 701-702, 98 S.Ct. at 3015, 57 L.Ed.2d at 1058. The purposes of the reservation would not be entirely defeated in the absence of an implied federal reserved water right.

REASONS FOR CHECKING EACH BOX

- Box 1: A claimant designation is unnecessary if a federal reserved water right does not exist.
- Box 2: Objector denies that Executive Orders entered on April 9, 1873 and on February 13, 1911 impliedly or expressly reserved ground water.
- Box 3: Objector denies that the quantity claimed has any relationship to the primary purposes described in Executive Orders entered on April 9, 1873 and on February 13, 1911.
- Box 4: Two Executive orders entered on April 9, 1873, and on February 13, 1911 created the reservations related to this claimed federal reserved water right. Any portion of the claimed water right within an area added to the Reservation after its initial creation should carry a priority date as of the date of the enlargement, and not of the initial creation.

- Box 5: Objector denies that there is any basis for a federal reserved water right for a diversion from a well for irrigation, commercial, industrial, and domestic uses.
- Box 7: Objector denies that there is any basis for a federal reserved water right for a diversion from a well for irrigation, commercial, industrial, and domestic uses.
- Box 8: A Period of Year designation is unnecessary if a federal reserved water right does not exist.
- Box 9: A Place of Use designation is unnecessary if a federal reserved water right does not exist. Even if a federal reserved water right exists, the place of use description as “[t]he presently federally owned property administered by the General Services Administration” is overly broad. Attached as Attachment I is a Master Title Plat entitled “MTP Suppl Boise Barracks Mil Res.” This Master Title Plat illustrates that the United States has deeded significant portions of the original Boise Barracks Military Reservation to non-federal entities. If the United States later reacquired any of this land, a reserved water right would no longer exist on the reacquired land even though the land was within the original Boise Barracks Military Reservation.
