An aerial photograph of a river delta, likely the Colorado River, showing a complex network of distributaries. The image is overlaid with a blue grid. The terrain is a mix of red, pink, and white, indicating different soil or sediment types. Two white circular punch holes are visible at the top. A yellow dot marks a specific location on the river, labeled '22-587-2'. The text '04N45E29' is printed in yellow in the upper left quadrant.
