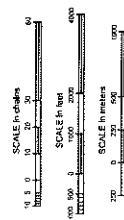

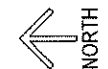

Figure 1 is a line graph showing the percentage of respondents who believe that the use of force is justified in various circumstances. The x-axis represents the percentage of respondents who believe that the use of force is justified (0% to 100%). The y-axis represents the percentage of respondents who believe that the use of force is justified (0% to 100%). The graph shows a positive correlation between the two variables, with a regression line and a confidence interval.

Figure 1. The schematic diagram of the experimental design. The subjects were divided into two groups: the control group and the experimental group. The control group received the standard treatment, while the experimental group received the standard treatment plus the intervention. The subjects were then assessed for the primary outcome measure at baseline and follow-up.

DISCUSSION: This is only a quick display of the Bureau of Land Management's (BLM) Record of Title and Township survey data. Records from the 1930s and 1940s are the most complete, although many have been altered by federal agencies of town or other bodies of water. Refer to customer surveys and other information for details.

The published version of our software represents the best action taken, but may not be the effective data. See the National Index for the date of the original information.
