☒ This water right should not exist. (This water right should exist).

☐ This water right was not recommended, but should be recommended with the elements described above.

Reasons for Response:

1. Failure to Properly Serve: The Big Wood Canal Company did not verify their objection as required by law, so its objection should be dismissed. The "Concerned Water Users" failed to sign the objection in its name, so its objection should be dismissed. Also, the Objectors failed to serve both owners of the water right.
2. Lack of Standing: The so-called "Concerned Water Users" are not claimants in the SRBA, so its objection should be dismissed. Upon information and belief, the claimant also maintains the Objectors are unaffected and are not injured in fact by the claims.

3. Res Judicata, Collateral Estoppel, Judicial Estoppel, Administrative Estoppel, Waiver and Estoppel: “Aesthetic, wildlife and recreation” uses have been decreed in the SRBA court, without objection of the Objectors in this case, so they are foreclosed through all claim preclusion theories, including, but not limited to, res judicata, collateral estoppel, judicial estoppel, administrative estoppel and estoppel and from asserting these issues; or in the alternative, the Objectors have waived their right to object on this basis or they are estopped from raising such objections including but not limited to by their failure to object to the licensing, transfer and adjudication of this and other rights.
4. Failure to State a Claim: The Objectors relied on Idaho Code Section 42-1501. Section 42-1501 addresses only minimum stream flows and, therefore, is not applicable to whether or not the claimed uses for this right exists. The Objectors further argue that a right water right cannot be appropriated unless the Idaho legislature or Constitution “declares sue to be beneficial. Contrary to the Objectors’ argument, there is nothing in the state constitution or statutes that limit or define the term “beneficial use.” The Objectors’ argument is in direct contravention of the Idaho Supreme Court’s holding in State, Department of Parks v. Idaho Department of Water Resources, 96 Idaho 440, 530 P.2d 924 (1974), wherein the Court held that “[w]hile it is well established in western water law that an application of water must be made for a ‘beneficial use,’ nevertheless in Idaho at least the generic term ‘beneficial use’ has never been judicially or statutorily defined.” To the extent that the Objectors assert that a beneficial use must be defined by the legislature or constitution, the argument lacks a basis in law or fact and, therefore, is subject to sanctions under I.R.C.P. Rule 11(a)(1). Nevertheless, the Idaho Department of Water Resources (“IDWR”) has allowed “aesthetic, wildlife and recreation uses” and their agency determination is entitled to great deference. For this and other reasons, the Objectors have failed to state a claim.
5. Attorney’s Fees and Costs: The claimant is entitled to costs and attorney fees under Idaho law, including but not limited to under Idaho Rules of Civil Procedure 54 and Idaho Code Sections 12-121 and 12-123.
