REASONS SUPPORTING OBJECTION(S):

The Idaho Department of Water Resources ("IDWR") Recommended Water Rights Acquired Under State Law dated November 17, 2008 for claim no. 63-32570 contains the following remark under the "Source" element recommended for this water right:

"The source of this water right is waste water. The wasting of water may be discontinued at any time."

The Dixie Slough, which is the source for this water right, flows year round. Unquestionably, the quantity of water available from this source increases after irrigation commences further upgradient in the Boise River Basin. And arguably, this increase in flow may in some part be attributable to return flows from the upgradient irrigation practices.

There is a lag, however, from the time the irrigation season begins until this increased flow is available from the source. The Claimant relies and has always relied on the use of this source for irrigation prior to the time when the increased flow caused by these return flows becomes available. For this reason, the Claimant agrees that a portion of the source of this water right may be “waste water”. However, this remark incorrectly implies that the entire source depends on others continuing the practice of wasting water. For this reason, the Claimant objects to this remark.

This remark should be removed in its entirety from IDWR’s recommendation for this water right; or in the alternative the remark should be modified to clarify that only some portion of the source of this right depends on wastewater.
