RE: Indian Creek
Kuna-Mora Road
Sec. 34, T2N, R1E, BM.

Paul:

The pictures associated with this letter will show and hopefully explain what we would assume is the flow headed toward where the main stem of Indian Creek and the New York Canal come together.

Exhibit A is on the down stream side of the Kuna-Mora Road bridge crossing over Indian Creek looking west.

Exhibit B is looking downstream from the bridge crossing north.

The bridge opening is 12'6" wide and 28' 6" long.

The elevation of the high water mark shown on Exhibit A is 10.10 and the bottom of the channel under the bridge is 12.00, which is a difference of 2.10. It appears according to Exhibit B; the water then flattens out and falls at a gradual slope away from the bridge north toward the Mora Canal. With a .10 ft of fall under the bridge for the 28'6" would give you a longitude slope of 0.003496 and using an n factor of .030 you would end up with a flow of approximately 104 CFS.

Sincerely,

Tim Page
Assistant Project Manager, BPBC
