RE SRBA Claim No 24-10712

Dear Claimants:

I have corresponded with you previously concerning the above-listed water right claim that you have filed in the Snake River Basin Adjudication. Representatives of the Idaho Department of Water Resources ("IDWR") and of the Wyoming State Engineer's Office have recently had the opportunity to meet and discuss your claim, as well as other similar claims.

As you know, IDWR considers your right to be a Wyoming water right, and filing a claim with the SRBA is not necessary, but is allowable under current Idaho law. Any recommendation provided to the SRBA Court by IDWR would only include the element(s) of your right that are actually located in Idaho. With regard to your water right, IDWR would only recommend the place of use element of your water right, with remarks indicating that this right is a Wyoming water right. Any description of elements of the right located in Wyoming would be for informational purposes only and would not be enforceable under Idaho law. Moreover, any recommendation issued by IDWR is limited to what is provided for in your Wyoming Certificate.

In the meeting between representatives of IDWR and the Wyoming State Engineer's Office, we were unable to resolve the discrepancies between how your right actually appears to be used in Idaho and how your Wyoming Certificate describes the right. If you are actually irrigating more acres than are provided for in your Wyoming Certificate, I would suggest that you contact Jade Henderson, Wyoming Water Superintendent, at (307) 279-3441 to discuss how you may be able to file for an enlargement of your water rights. IDWR does not have the authority to change the description of your water right and does not have the resources to determine the proper place of use.

Since any decree issued by the SRBA Court would essentially be duplicative of your Wyoming water right, the best course of action for you to take may be to withdraw your SRBA claim. A water right issued in Idaho is no more valid than a water right issued in Wyoming, and would carry no greater legal weight. Since the decision you make in this regard involves complicated multi-jurisdictional concerns, you may wish to consult your own attorney about it. If you wish to withdraw your SRBA claim, I have enclosed a Request for Withdrawal of Claim form for your convenience. IDWR will refund the filing fee that you submitted with your SRBA claim.

If you desire to move forward with your SRBA claim, additional information will likely be needed, such as deeds and potential title searches and surveys, to properly report your water right. This information will also be required by the State of Wyoming so that your Wyoming Certificate properly identifies the elements of your water right.

We are working closely with the Wyoming State Engineer's Office to make certain that your water right is accurately reported in both states. In that regard, we are mindful to attempt to prevent any additional burdens or costs upon claimants, along with making certain that you have properly recorded water rights that will be valid in the future.

Very truly yours,

NICHOLAS B. SPENCER
Deputy Attorney General

Re: Idaho lands under Wyoming water rights in Freedom Canal

Dear Family:

Working closely with Idaho along our shared border, your water right claim for Idaho lands in their Snake River Basin Adjudication comes to our attention. We are writing to let you know the Freedom Canal already has Wyoming water rights adjudicated for irrigation & stock use in Idaho, as a Wyoming diversion from Salt River. This is also true of the nearby Kirkbride Ditch.

In contrast to other areas where an existing interstate decree or compact already designates otherwise, both states agree that the state in which the canal diverts from the natural stream is the state which has jurisdiction to permit, adjudicate, and administer the water right for that diversion (regardless of which state the artificial conveyance and water's use attaches to).

Because your right to natural flow originates from and is recorded by Wyoming, your Idaho claim is an unnecessary duplication that can mislead you and others to expect that your usage on Idaho land should be subject to Idaho priorities and regulation. Wyoming therefore encourages you to withdraw your Idaho claim.

If you have questions about whether your full use in Idaho is covered by a Wyoming adjudication, please send me a copy of the legal land description on your deed so we can do a water right search of Wyoming State Engineer's Office records for that land. We can also provide copies, and can explain other procedures such as how to file for an expanded Wyoming water right to unpermitted lands or additional uses.

Both states will appreciate your attention to this matter, and your thoughtful withdrawal of the Idaho claim.

Best regards,

Jade Henderson

Re: SRBA Claim No 24-10712

Dear Claimant:

I am a Deputy Attorney General who represents the Idaho Dept. of Water Resources (IDWR) in the Snake River Basin Adjudication (SRBA). IDWR's records indicate that you have filed the above-listed water right claim in the SRBA.

The claim is evidenced by a Water Right Certificate issued by the State of Wyoming. IDWR considers such rights to be Wyoming water rights because the point of diversion of the water is in Wyoming, even though the right may be used in whole or in part in Idaho. However, the SRBA District Court has determined that such rights may be claimed—but do not have to be claimed—in the SRBA. If the owner of a Wyoming right that is used in whole or in part in Idaho files a claim in the SRBA, IDWR will investigate the claim and recommend to the SRBA Court how it ought to be decreed.

In conducting its investigation of your claim, IDWR has discovered discrepancies between how your right appears actually to be used in Idaho and how your Wyoming Certificate says the right is used. The discrepancy may be either that you appear to be irrigating more or different acres than are listed on your Wyoming Certificate, or that from the legal description provided on the Certificate, IDWR cannot determine which acres the Certificate entitles you to irrigate. Because IDWR considers the right to be a Wyoming water right, it likely cannot recommend the right differently from how the right is recorded on the Wyoming Certificate, even if the right is presently being used differently, without the concurrence of the Wyoming State Engineer's Office.

Due to the discrepancies that have been found between the use of the water and the Wyoming Certificate, the Preliminary Director's Report on the above referenced claim will not be sent at the same time as the other Basin 24 claims. There is a meeting scheduled between the Wyoming State Engineer's Office and IDWR to try to determine how to resolve discrepancies such as IDWR has found with your right. Following that meeting, you will either be contacted by IDWR for additional information, or a Preliminary Recommendation of your right will be issued, after which time you will have an opportunity to meet with IDWR to resolve any problems with the recommendation before a Final Recommendation is sent to the SRBA Court. Also, there is a Public Meeting for Basin 24 scheduled for September 28, 2006, beginning at 2:30 p.m. at the Thayne Senior Center in Thayne, Wyoming. Although a preliminary recommendation for your water right will not be completed at that time, if you would like to get a better understanding of how the SRBA works, you are invited to attend.

To learn more about the exact nature of the discrepancies IDWR has found between your actual use in Idaho and your Wyoming Certificate you may contact Cindy Bird at IDWR's Soda Springs office, 15 W. Center Street, Soda Springs, ID 83276, telephone number (208) 547-3993.

Very truly yours,

Subject: Incomplete Notice of Claim filed.

Dear Mr. Heiner,

We received your Notice of claim to a water right in the SRBA with incomplete information. When our regional staff data entered the claim several areas were incomplete or incorrect. The deed that you enclosed with your claim is reflected on the enclosed layout. We verified the information with the Caribou County Assessors office in Soda Springs. I've enclosed a new copy of your Notice of Claim to a water right with this letter for your records.

The State of Wyoming appropriation certificate that you included with your claim has not yet been verified to establish what portion of the right is appurtenant to your ground. Also, it appears from the map of the Freedom Ditch Enlargement project that the Jenkin's Family is also claiming the same ground and water that you are claiming. Was this ground owned by Emil Hansen or Theras Jenkins at one time?

If you have any further questions please feel free to contact me at (208) 547-3993.
