To: 57-11510, 57-11514, 57-11515, 57-11516
From: D. Shaff [Signature]
Date: April 6, 2001
Subject: Meeting with claimant April 5, 2001

Owen Orndorff and Lori Dingle, representing the claimant Junayo Ranch Limited Partnership (Junayo), met Roxanne Brown, Candice McHugh, and myself, here at IDWR for the purpose of discussing the Director's Report for the above claims issued in March. By claim the following plan of action or event occurred.

57-11510

For this right, the claimant shares the diversion of water from the Community West Ditch. The other claimants' consultant measured 21.30 cfs in 1999. The other claimants had rights recommended from this diversion totaling 15.43 cfs by my calculations. Consequently, Junayo may have a right for 5.87 cfs for diversion of early season water. No separate measurement by the claimant is necessary for this claim.

STS signed 7/13/01 R Brown printed

57-11514

For this right, no previous measurement had been taken. Junayo did provide two dimension of a Parshall flume that can be used to determine the maximum flow of water the flume could pass. Orndorff said he was prepared to testify he has seen water diverted through the flume to full capacity. The dimensions supplied by the claimant are a nine (9) inch width (throat) and a gage of 1.5 feet mounted on the flume. The University of Idaho publication Water Measurement (Bulletin 552, February 1976) at page 13 in at table of Figure 5 shows through a properly constructed Parshall flume of this size a maximum possible flow is 8.9 cfs. The claimant identified the only valid point of diversion for this right is T02S R04W S24 SENE, and he other point of diversion on the claim is an error.

Underlying land w/ 1966 priority; STS printed 7/13/01 R Brown

57-11515

In a previous letter to the claimant, McHugh relayed to the claimant the present property owner had also filed a claim for basically the same water right filed by Junayo. Orndorff said Junayo had no interest in pursuing this claim and would willingly withdraw it. Claim withdrawn 4/26/01 R Brown; court has not yet vacated hearing; D. Ash working on order 7/13/01

57-11516

For this right, no previous measurement had been taken. While the claimant supplied Agricultural Research Service (ARS) data for historic stream flows in Macks Creek, the claimant presented no record of the diversions. Junayo will obtain and supply data about the maximum diversion under this claim.

Memorandum

To: 57-11510, 57-11514, 57-11515, 57-11516
From: D. Shaff
Date: April 6, 2001
Subject: Meeting with claimant April 5, 2001

Owen Orndorff and Lori Dingle, representing the claimant Junayo Ranch Limited Partnership (Junayo), met Roxanne Brown, Candice McHugh, and myself, here at IDWR for the purpose of discussing the Director's Report for the above claims issued in March. By claim the following plan of action or event occurred.

57-11510

For this right, the claimant shares the diversion of water from the Community West Ditch. The other claimants' consultant measured 21.30 cfs in 1999. The other claimants had rights recommended from this diversion totaling 15.43 cfs by my calculations. Consequently, Junayo may have a right for 5.87 cfs for diversion of early season water. No separate measurement by the claimant is necessary for this claim.

57-11514

For this right, no previous measurement had been taken. Junayo did provide two dimension of a Parshall flume that can be used to determine the maximum flow of water the flume could pass. Orndorff said he was prepared to testify he has seen water diverted through the flume to full capacity. The dimensions supplied by the claimant are a nine (9) inch width (throat) and a gage of 1.5 feet mounted on the flume. The University of Idaho publication Water Measurement (Bulletin 552, February 1976) at page 13 in at table of Figure 5 shows through a properly constructed Parshall flume of this size a maximum possible flow is 8.9 cfs. The claimant identified the only valid point of diversion for this right is T02S R04W S24 SENE, and he other point of diversion on the claim is an error.

57-11515

In a previous letter to the claimant, McHugh relayed to the claimant the present property owner had also filed a claim for basically the same water right filed by Junayo. Orndorff said Junayo had no interest in pursuing this claim and would willingly withdraw it.

57-11516

For this right, no previous measurement had been taken. While the claimant supplied Agricultural Research Service (ARS) data for historic stream flows in Macks Creek, the claimant presented no record of the diversions. Junayo will obtain and supply data about the maximum diversion under this claim.
