Case 39576	)	MEMORANDUM IN SUPPORT OF
	)	MOTION TO FILE LATE CLAIMS

The Claimants, Keith Bowen and Diana Bowen(hereinafter “Claimant”), by and through counsel, Robert H. Wood, hereby files this Memorandum in Support of Claimant’s Motion to File Late Claim number 22-14114, on the grounds that substantial reasons exist to justify relief from the operation of the order closing Basin 22 as to the above water rights under IRCP (60(b)(6)).

BACKGROUND

The Claimant owns a valid Wyoming water right which is diverted in Wyoming but used to irrigate Idaho land. Due to IDWR’s prior policy of not requiring Wyoming rights similar to Claimants to be claimed in the SRBA, the Claimant did not file a claim in the SRBA. Now that it appears that the policy of IDWR is to require similar water rights to be claimed in the SRBA, the Claimant has filed this claim.

APPLICATION

The Court has discretion to grant Claimant's Motion to File Late Claims pursuant to its discretion granted by the Idaho Rules of Civil Procedure 60(b)(6), and by prior case law.

I.R.C.P. 60(b)(1) & (6) gives the court the discretion to set aside a final judgment, order, or proceeding for the following reasons: "(6) any other reason justifying relief from the operation of the judgment". Although the court is vested with broad discretion in determining whether to grant or deny a Rule 60(b) motion, it should do so when there is a showing of 'unique and compelling circumstances' justifying relief." Mc Lean v. Cheyovich Family Trust, 2012 WL 1970060 (Idaho)

In the case before the Court, it is clear that "unique and compelling circumstances" exist which would warrant a decision by the Court allowing Claimant to file late claims based upon claim number 22-14114.

The water right in question is based on a valid Wyoming water right permits, J3271942.0D. These are natural flow rights in Teton Creek which specifically state on the face of the permit that the water is to be used in Teton County, Idaho. Claimants believed that because they had a valid Wyoming right which allowed them to apply Wyoming water to a beneficial use in Idaho, they had no need to file a claim in Idaho. In fact, Claimants had even been informed by IDWR that Idaho rights were not necessary. Claimant only recently became aware of the need to file a claim in the SRBA when Counsel for Claimant notified them that they need to file such a claim..

This Court has set aside orders disallowing claims when the facts evidence excusable mistake or neglect. While a disallowance is not exactly the same as failing to file a motion to file a late claim prior to a basin being closed, it is for all intents and purposes the same in that it is an order by the Court which essentially decrees the elements of the water right, or lack thereof. Furthermore, the motion currently before the Court is similar in that but for the absence of the Court allowing the claims to be filed, Claimant in the current case will be forced to forego diverting the water in a manner which has been allowed by an old decree and in a manner which has been allowed by the SRBA court in previous rulings.

Claimant realizes that Basin 22 has been closed by order of this Court. Nevertheless, Claimant's belief that this Court should exercise its discretion and allow the filing of the claims because the delay was not willful, only recently discovered, no parties will be prejudiced and Claimant has a meritorious position.

In defining "willful" action, the Presiding Judge, relying upon Black's Law Dictionary, noted the following:

"In civil actions the word often denotes an act which is intentional, or knowing, or voluntary, as distinguished from accidental." Black's further defines the term as, "A willful act may be described as one done intentionally, knowingly, and purposely, without justifiable excuse, as distinguished from act done carelessly, thoughtlessly, or inadvertently. A willful act differs essentially from a negligent act. The one positive and the other negative."

Order on Permissive Review and Order of Recommitment, (Bedke II) at 8.

Claimant has not knowingly or purposefully delayed the filing of this motion. It was simply a change in policy by IDWR which necessitated the filing of this claim. Had Claimant or his counsel known this change in policy prior to the closing of the Basin 22, he and his counsel would have filed the previously prepared and investigated rights immediately.

No parties to the SRBA will be prejudiced by a decision of the Court granting this Motion. Granting Claimant's motion does not automatically grant the right as claimed. Parties to the SRBA can still object to the Director's report which will be filed in its regular process.

Furthermore, the overall winding down of the SRBA will not be delayed because the issues are narrowed sufficient enough to either resolved immediately upon the filing of a director's report or to be heard by the Special Master on a shortened time frame.

Finally, Claimant has a meritorious position and claims as evidenced by the filings in support of the late claim as well as previous rendered orders of the SRBA court. Just as default judgments and forfeitures are not favored and "trial courts should grant relief in doubtful cases in order to decide the case on the merits", so too should the above Court favor the allowance an otherwise valid claim the right to be processed and recommended by the Director as all other water claims have been afforded, especially where the facts surrounding the failure to file were not of intentional neglect or failure to resolve the pending issues. See Jonsson v. Oxborrow, 141 Idaho 635, 115 P.3d 726 (2005).

This is not a case of mistake of law but a mistake of facts. Furthermore, this is not a case where claimant failed to prosecute its claims or failed to show due diligence in the prosecution of its rights. See Washington Federal Savings and Loan Association v. Transamerica Premier Insurance Company 124 Idaho 913, 865 P.2d 1004 916 (Idaho 1993) at 916 & 1007. See also: Kovachy v. DeLeusomme, 122 Idaho at 974, 842 P.2d at 310 (Idaho 1992).

Claimant is fully aware that the test also comes down to what "a reasonably prudent person would or should act under similar circumstances." However, in determining what such actions are reasonable and prudent, it is clear that the actions were NOT willful, NOT without any sufficient legal reason and were NOT in disregard to the process of the Court as set forth in the Supreme Court case. See: Crumley v. Minden, 80 Idaho 391, 394, 331 P.2d 275, 277 (1958).

CONCLUSION

It is clear that the Court has the authority and discretion to allow Claimant to file and prosecute water right number 22-14114. This authority and discretion is grounded in the Idaho Rules of Civil Procedure and precedent set by the Idaho Supreme Court and the Snake River Basin Adjudication District Court as well. If Claimant is not allowed to file said claims, he will be significantly injured in what otherwise is a valid right. Furthermore, granting a Motion under rule 60(b) of the Idaho Rules of Civil Procedure does not open the “flood gates” to all other “would be” claimants due to the fact that a time limit of six months is attached to one’s ability to file under said rule. Therefore, the above entitled Court should use its statutory discretion and grant Claimant his motion to file his late claim for the above entitled claim.
