E. REASONS SUPPORTING OBJECTIONS:

Idaho law requires the director of the Idaho Department of Water Resources (IDWR) to determine the quantity of water used by each claimant in the adjudication. I.C. § 42-1411(2)(c). The Idaho Supreme Court has found that “a claimant seeking a decree of a court to confirm his right to the use of water by appropriation [rather than by permit] must present to the court sufficient evidence to enable it to make a definite and certain findings as to the amount of water actually diverted and applied, as well as the amount necessary for the beneficial use for which the water is claimed.” Reno v. Richards, 32 Idaho 1, 15 (1918). This determination “must be based upon evidence, not speculation. If a water right is based upon the constitutional method, ‘one of the essential requisites to establish his claim is the application of water to a beneficial use, and, where there is a total lack of evidence upon this point, a decree awarding water to the claimant cannot be sustained.’” City of Pocatello v. Idaho, 152 Idaho 830, 841 (2012) (quoting Reno 32 Idaho at 8). IDWR acknowledges that it has not investigated the quantity element of domestic water right claims in the CSRBA by stating “the quantity of water decreed for this water right is not a determination of historical beneficial use.” IDWR is not in compliance with its legal duty to determine the quantity of water put to beneficial use by those claimants that claim their water right based upon the constitutional method of acquiring a water right.

Exhibit A, attached, contains a list of claim numbers that the Tribe has also objected to that implicate the same issues raised in this objection.
