RE: History of Shoshone Medical Center's sources of water

Dear Mr. Spackman:

I started working for Idaho Water Company in 1966 and in 1969 I became manager for the same company.

In 1974 the Central Shoshone County Water District (CSCWD) was formed and bought out Idaho Water Company. I worked a total of thirty-eight years for this company and retired in 2004.

I have served as mayor for the City of Kellogg for twenty-two years and I am well aware of the old hospital along with the new hospital.

CSCWD ran a new 6" PVC main pipe on the east side of the road going to the old hospital and Kellogg High School, and at this time water for both buildings were hooked to this new main line of pipe.

The water system that is fed off the dam above the current hospital has always been used for irrigation and also fire protection.

I believe the change over from the old feed off the dam to the new 6" domestic line was completed in the 1980's, and all the time that I was with the Idaho Water Company and CSCWD the dam was always used to irrigate both the old hospital and the new hospital's grounds.

Sincerely,

Mac Pooler,
Mayor
