RELATES TO A37-12439

Dear Mr. Sorensen:

Pursuant to your recent request, I am writing this letter to address concerns with the water right involved with your small dairy operation. During our conversation, you indicated that your well currently provides water for two homes and your dairy operation. You indicated that your dairy currently consists of approximately 200 milking cows and 50 nonmilking cows. In addition, you stated that you do not irrigate any lawns with water diverted from your well.

Under Idaho law, a recorded water right is not required if the source of water is groundwater (diverted from a well) and the total use(s) fall within the "domestic use" definition outlined in §42-111, IDAHO CODE. I have included a copy of §42-111 for your reference. Part "a" of §42-111 defines domestic use as:

"the use of water for homes, organization camps, public campgrounds, livestock, and any other purpose in connection therewith, including irrigation of up to one-half ($\frac{1}{2}$) acre of land, if the total use is not in excess of thirteen thousand (13,000) gallons per day."

Water use for domestic and stockwatering purposes will vary somewhat depending on a variety of circumstances. However, the following numbers represent typical water requirements:

"Dry" Cow Stockwater Requirement: 12 gallons per day per head

"Milking" Cow Stockwater Requirement: 35 gallons per day per head

In House Domestic Use: 50-75 gallons per day per person

July 17, 1997

In addition, to the water uses on the previous page, you will use some amount of water for washing equipment and cattle in your dairy operation. This amount of water will depend on the number of milking cows, number of milkings per day, and the method of cow washing that you use.

The water requirements listed in this letter should serve as a guide in calculating your overall daily water use. If the total overall groundwater use is less than 13,000 gallons per day, then you are not required by Idaho law to have a recorded water right.

If you have any questions, or if I can be of any further assistance, feel free to contact me at your convenience.

Sincerely,
