We checked our records, and we have no record of streams now or formerly named Home Creek, Home Spring Creek, or Homespring Creek; or Pale Creek. We do have an entry in the database for Dale Creek in Caribou County, but it seems to be associated with Salt River. There is also an entry for Lake Hollow in Caribou County, which is a hypsographic feature (valley) in which flows Ten Mile Creek. Streams with very different names can flow through valleys of a different name than that of the stream. Type these names (one at a time) in the name box, and select Idaho. Click on the name to view the entire entry, and click Topozone to view the location on the topographic map.

Subject: Name Changes on water sources in Idaho

good afternoon,

I'm working on the Snake River Basin Adjudication in the State of Idaho. The area that I'm currently working in is tributary to the Blackfoot River. The 1891 decree, Fred Steven v Eastern Idaho Irrigation Company decreed several sources that I can't find on TOPO maps. Can you tell me if the following source names have changed from this original decree? If so, what is the new source names.

1. Home Spring Creek
2. Pale Creek
3. Dale Creek
4. Lake Creek

They are all tributary to the Blackfoot River. Thank you for your help.

In 1891 in the Fred Stevens v Eastern Idaho Water Company decreed a water Source as Home Spring Creek that is tributary to the Blackfoot River. On the current TOPO maps it doesn't show this source any more. Is it possible to determine if this source has been renamed to something else?
