Remarks:Comments:

Memo to file: re phone conversation with Mary Dickenson

The main subject of the conversation was to try and determine how old the ponds are on her property and whether or not they were man-made. According to Mary, who is the daughter of the original claimant Carlos Weed, the main pond has been there ever since she can remember which dates back about 60 years. Which would put the pond back to at least 1946. The other two smaller ponds were built about 40 years ago and she said she personally remembers when they were being built. That dates the two smaller ponds to 1966. The two smaller ponds were built to hold the overflow of the larger pond. She said that the source of the pond was from spring runoff and the Sorenson/Rhinehart ditch. However I did not ask if the pond was full year-round or if it was mainly filled with seasonal water. This still needs to be clarified because the claim for the ponds states the source as from an unnamed stream, which could make sense after looking at the drainages in the area. If the source is mostly Sorenson/Rhinehart water (and Mary should know because she is the secretary for the ditch company) then the claim may be redundant and should be disallowed. However if the source is runoff and/or an unnamed stream then the claim is valid. I have called her back and left a message for her to call me again – but as of this memo I have not heard from her. She did say that she will write up several affidavits regarding the ponds and the springs on her property.

I, Carlos Weed, was born October 12, 1907 on the property I now own. This property is located east of the town of Council, Idaho in what is now Adams County.

At the time of my birth, my father, Carlos Weed, Sr. owned and rented part of the property now owned by me. He farmed this property using irrigating water from the Sorenson Rinehart Ditch. This ditch is occassionally refered to as the Gifford Sorenson.

I personally helped with the irrigating starting about 1915 and knew the water was from the Sorenson Rinehart Ditch.

In 1925, I bought and started farming the land I now own. Water from the North Lateral of the Sorenson Rinehart Ditch was used then and is still being used on this property.

I bought and rented land in 1928 using irrigating water from the South Lateral of the Sorenson Rinehart Ditch. The route for the main ditch and its laterals have not been changed.

Meetings of stockholders have been held annually, and work for maintainance and cleaning done annually.
