Charlie,

We refer to the ArcMap shape file for the area described in Amended Application Processing Administrative Memorandum #59 as the Basin 63 Ground Water Restricted Area. I have attached a copy of the memorandum for your review and the memorandum also includes a map showing the boundary of the Basin 63 Ground Water Restricted Area shape file. I think the memorandum gives a better definition of this area than I could by trying to give you an interpretative view of the memo. You can also find the memorandum at <https://idwr.idaho.gov/files/legal/guidance/Application-Processing-Memo-59.pdf>.

As for how the term was created or the art of the term, I can't really give you a good answer to that question. The term is used to designate the ArcMap shape file for the area described in the Application Processing Administrative Memorandum #59 in our mapping system. I have no idea how that came about or who did the naming of the ArcMap shape file. All I can tell you is that it is the name of the ArcMap shape file that we use in our mapping system to describe the area discussed in the memorandum.

I hope this helps.

Thanks Dan. Appreciate you reaching out and letting me know. One question: in your 12/18.2020 Proposed licensing amendment memo, you refer to the term "Basin 63 Restricted Ground Water Area". I am aware of various restrictions regarding wells in Basin 63 but am not aware of that exact term. Could you let me know exactly what is meant by that term? Is it a term of art now used by IDWR? If so, is it defined anywhere?

Thanks Dan.
