H. NARRATIVE/REMARKS/COMMENTS

On May 28, 2015 I sent an email to William Young requesting information about the point of diversion for this water right. I included a map. He returned the map and identified the point of diversion as being next to the house. Mr. Young said that Mormon Ditch conveys water to his house. I sent another email and asked for information to help identify the point of diversion from Meadow Creek (see attached correspondence). On June 12 he sent an email that described a measuring device and the other user that diverts from the same point of diversion. Initially he said that Rocky MT cattle was the other user. I told him that we don't have any water rights recorded for that name. Ultimately, we found that Guardian Partnership also diverts from Meadow Creek into Mormon Ditch. That is the point of diversion that I identified for this water right.

Hello, I don't find any water rights for Rocky Mountain Cattle. Guardian Partnership has a water right from Meadow Creek.

Sandra,
Hi and thanks for your help.
Meadow creek flows directly into the "Morman Ditch" which conveys our domestic/stock water right to our homestead.
The other water right owners (Rocky MT cattle co) controls both the Morman ditch and all of Meadow Creek.
Most of Meadow creek is diverted into the Morman ditch and the rest is collected in a lower ditch.
There is a crude measuring device at confluence of Meadow Creek and Morman ditch.
Let us know if you need more help.

Hello, I received the map you send that identifies where you pump from the ditch. Thank you.
Is there a diversion at Meadow Creek that supplies water to the ditch? I believe there is another right that diverts into the ditch to supply fields down the valley. Is there a headgate or measuring device at the point of diversion from Meadow Creek?

Hello, I am working toward licensing water right permit 74-7363 from Meadow Creek. Because the right is for domestic and stock, I will be able to do an in-house license examination. I am hoping that you can provide me with the information I need to complete this process. I do not know the location of the point of diversion. I have included a map. Please use this to identify where you divert from the creek. According to the proof of beneficial use submitted by the previous owner a 3 horse power pump is used for both the house and 15 horses. If this isn't correct please provide an update on the method of diversion and the number of stock. Any information that you can give will help with this process. Thanks.
