Good afternoon Michelle,

I am hoping that you were able to get the fee and amendment signed and returned to me soon. The field exam was completed on June 20 and we have still not completed the license for this water right. I have to give you an informal warning that if the Department does not receive the amendment and fee by Friday October 10, 2014, I will have to move on with a notice of intent to void permit. From there, that will give your company 14 days to return the information to my office before an order to void the permit is made. That void day would be October 24, 2014.

I understand this has been a difficult process in tracking down all of the necessary information and coordinating with various parties, however the Department is ready to move forward.
Sincerely,

Patrick Kelly

I got a messg the night before that the in house attorney, Jerry Cyncynatus, was taking the Jewish holiday off and wanted to reschedule. We are set for next Thursday. I am trying!

Yes, while maybe not perfectly clear we are at least to murky.

One last thing for NOW, by any chance do you have a W9 for your Department of Water Resources that I can submit with my check request.

Michelle,

Yes this is a copy of the active permit that DDR is currently allowed to irrigate the land with. A permit is the authoritative document until a water right license is issued. In short, the water right process starts with an application, which moves on to a permit, which eventually becomes a water right license after the field exam. It is intuitive, I feel, for people to receive their Permit to Appropriate Water and to believe that the water right process is complete. However, a permit will expire while a license will not. Hope this clears up any confusion

Regards,

Patrick

Patrick, this is an approval of the same water right for the full 20 acre back in June 2000.
