Re: Correction to water certificates

Dear Rachel Summer

Please be advised that I represent Kermit Wiggins, of Cambridge Idaho who received your letter of June 23, 2014. Kermit reviewed the documentation and found all the information correct to understand the best of his recollection and understanding that too direct to divert to divert lights on the next. Recently however, he was looking at the original water right issued April 7, 2003 by Glenn Saxton.

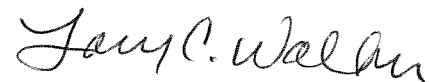

That 2003 license permitted Mr. Wiggins to divert water out of Rush Creek, a tributary to Weser River. The amounts, time of diversion, beneficial use, period of use and other information was identical to the permit you sent to him on June 23, 2014.

However when I was talking to him last week he noticed that the Water Rights License enclosed with your letter, identifies the SOURCE from an "unnamed stream", Tributary: to RUSH CREEK.

Kermit asked me to find out if this is a mistake, an oversight, or an error? The only source of water in that drainage is Rush Creek where he diverts water into his reservoir and from his reservoir to the same farmland identified on both certificates.

Sincerely,

L. C. WALKER LAW OFFICE
