Hi Jana,

I think we have a little miscommunication. Am I to understand that the water set aside for the new dairy cannot be used for irrigation from now on? I thought he could use the new dairy water for irrigation until the dairy construction begins. That is probably why he listed the new dairy rights on the transfer.

Another problem, Mike stopped by while I was calibrating a meter this afternoon. I told him what you needed by excluding the dairy rights so you will probably get an email stating that, but we better get to the bottom of this first. We'll come over and visit or he will.

Thank you.

Brian

Brian,

Thanks for the shapefile.. I have started processing the transfer and noticed that the new ppu is for 3844.4 acres. The water rights are only good for 3694.1 acres (a difference of 150.3 acres) which means that the transfer will have a condition on it that states the owner will have to send in a map every year of the 3694.1 acres that will be irrigated for that season. I just wanted Mike to realize that he will not be able to irrigate the entire new place of use. Will you pass this on when you contact him.

Jana
