Re: Applications for Transfer 74806, 74807, and 74808

Dear Mr. Hunzeker,

In May 2008, you filed three transfer applications with the department, seeking to change some of the elements of three separate statutory claims (11-4095, 11-7585, and 11-7586). Transfers involving statutory or beneficial use claims require a considerable amount of review and can include significant procedural hurdles. In the past, the department has often "held" such transfers rather than invest the large amount of staff time needed to conduct the detailed review. Because your transfers involve disputed statutory claims, they have not been processed. This letter is meant to notify you that our office has recently begun an effort to address some of these "held" transfers involving statutory claims, including your three transfers.

Over the years, the department has developed a set of guidelines to assist its staff in processing transfer applications. These guidelines were created to provide a uniform system for reviewing transfers and ensure that the legal requirements governing transfers are being met. The current set of guidelines ("Transfer Processing Memo No. 24") states the following:

Applications for transfer proposing to change a water right based on a statutory or beneficial use claim must be reviewed to determine the validity, priority date, and extent of beneficial use established under the claimed right. Review must include field verification or other means to verify the right. . . . In addition, the applicant must be asked to provide information confirming the priority date of the claim.

The basis for this language is that the department, by statute, must verify that a water right is valid before approving a transfer of that water right. Statutory claims are generally created by the claimant and have not been validated by the department or a court. Therefore, before a statutory claim can be transferred, the department must verify that the claim constitutes a valid water right. All of the elements of the statutory claim must be verified (priority date, diversion rate, period of use, place of use).

In accordance with the transfer guidelines, before processing your transfers, the department must conduct a detailed review to determine the validity of your statutory claims. The first elements to be analyzed are the priority dates claimed. Therefore, the department is requesting specific evidence of the priority dates listed on statutory claims 11-4095 (12/10/1864), 11-7585 (6/15/1892), and 11-7586 (6/9/1915). I have enclosed a pamphlet titled "Evidence of Priority" that was distributed to claimants in the Snake River Basin Adjudication. This pamphlet was meant to assist applicants in collecting and identifying documents that sufficiently establish a priority date.

I recognize that there was some evidence of priority submitted with two of the statutory claims (11-7585 and 11-7586) when they were filed. Evidence submitted with 11-7585 included a notarized statement from Wayne D. Johnson. The written statement was notarized in December 2007. Mr. Johnson states that the "Thornock Dam" has been in existence since 1864 and was included in a decree in 1889. He admits, however, that he has only owned and operated the land since 1942. Affidavits are sufficient evidence of priority only to the extent that they are based on personal knowledge (actual observations of the affiant). Mr. Johnson's statement is only sufficient to establish a priority date of 1942 because that is the beginning of his personal knowledge. A similar affidavit was submitted with claim 11-7586. Mr. Johnson states that the Thornock Dam was built in 1915 (which is a direct contradiction of his other affidavit). He also states that he has "seen this land irrigated personally since 1942." This affidavit would also support a 1942 priority date, but nothing earlier.

Please review the pamphlet and try to find physical or documentary evidence establishing a priority date for the water use described in the statutory claims. If the Thornock Dam has been an important irrigation feature in the community, there may be reference to its existence in old journals or town archives. The claimant ultimately bears the burden of proving the elements of his claim, including priority date. You may have difficulty finding evidence to support the priority dates listed in your statutory claims. Given this distinct possibility, it appears that you have three options with regard to your transfer applications:

Option 1: Locate and provide specific evidence supporting the priority dates listed in your statutory claims. Once sufficient evidence of priority is received, the department will finish the review of the statutory claims. This will likely include a field exam to verify the location of the existing points of diversion (listed in the claims), the number of acres irrigated, and the capacity of the delivery system. After the statutory claims have been validated, the transfer applications will be advertised to the public. If a transfer application is protested, the department will begin an administrative hearing process. If the transfer applications are not protested, they will be approved with conditions or will be denied.

Option 2: Locate and provide evidence of a later priority date. As stated above, the evidence already in the file would likely support a priority date of 1942. You may not be able to find reliable evidence tracing back to the early priority dates claimed. However, you may find evidence supporting a priority date earlier than 1942. Once sufficient evidence of any priority is received, the department will complete the field examination of the statutory claims and will finalize the transfer process as described above. This alternative may be less preferable, however, because the priority date of your statutory claim must be changed to agree with the evidence provided before the transfers can be considered. Any changes to the priority dates made by the department constitute a final administrative determination of the priority date.

Option 3: If you are unable to find any proof of priority dates or do not want to invest the time to track down evidence or do not want to have a late priority date affixed to your statutory claim, you can always withdraw the transfers. This can be done by sending the department a letter officially withdrawing the transfers. Although you will not be able to adjust your water delivery systems as contemplated in the transfers, you will at least preserve the priority date associated with your statutory claims for the time being. You should be aware, however, that if an adjudication is ever held in the Bear River drainage, claimants will be expected to provide proof of priority date. Because you will likely have to validate the priority dates associated with your claims at some point in the future, it may be worthwhile to locate whatever evidence may exist today and add it to your statutory claim files.

To summarize, your transfer applications have been held by the department because they involve statutory claims and will require a detailed review before they can be approved. The department is beginning the process of reviewing some of these held transfers. The first part of the review of your transfers is establishing the validity of the priority dates listed in your statutory claims. You are officially being asked to provide sufficient evidence supporting your claimed priority dates. If you are unable to establish valid priority dates, the department is ultimately unable to approve the transfers and they will be voided. I am establishing a 60-day time period to collect and submit evidence supporting the claimed priority dates. If you are unable to provide evidence of priority on or before October 15, 2010, your applications for transfer (No. 74806, 74807, and 74808) will be voided due to a lack of evidence supporting the underlying statutory claims.

Thank you for your patience and cooperation in this matter. Feel free to contact me with any questions you may have.

Sincerely,

Re: Applications for Transfer 74806, 74807, and 74808

Dear Mr. Hunzeker,

In May 2008, you filed three transfer applications with the department, seeking to change some of the elements of three separate statutory claims (11-4095, 11-7585, and 11-7586). Transfers involving statutory or beneficial use claims require a considerable amount of review and can include significant procedural hurdles. In the past, the department has often "held" such transfers rather than invest the large amount of staff time needed to conduct the detailed review. Because your transfers involve disputed statutory claims, they have not been processed. This letter is meant to notify you that our office has recently begun an effort to address some of these "held" transfers involving statutory claims, including your three transfers.

Over the years, the department has developed a set of guidelines to assist its staff in processing transfer applications. These guidelines were created to provide a uniform system for reviewing transfers and ensure that the legal requirements governing transfers are being met. The current set of guidelines ("Transfer Processing Memo No. 24") states the following:

Applications for transfer proposing to change a water right based on a statutory or beneficial use claim must be reviewed to determine the validity, priority date, and extent of beneficial use established under the claimed right. Review must include field verification or other means to verify the right. . . . In addition, the applicant must be asked to provide information confirming the priority date of the claim.

The basis for this language is that the department, by statute, must verify that a water right is valid before approving a transfer of that water right. Statutory claims are generally created by the claimant and have not been validated by the department or a court. Therefore, before a statutory claim can be transferred, the department must verify that the claim constitutes a valid water right. All of the elements of the statutory claim must be verified (priority date, diversion rate, period of use, place of use).

In accordance with the transfer guidelines, before processing your transfers, the department must conduct a detailed review to determine the validity of your statutory claims. The first elements to be analyzed are the priority dates claimed. Therefore, the department is requesting specific evidence of the priority dates listed on statutory claims 11-4095 (12/10/1864), 11-7585 (6/15/1892), and 11-7586 (6/9/1915). I have enclosed a pamphlet titled "Evidence of Priority" that was distributed to claimants in the Snake River Basin Adjudication. This pamphlet was meant to assist applicants in collecting and identifying documents that sufficiently establish a priority date.

I recognize that there was some evidence of priority submitted with two of the statutory claims (11-7585 and 11-7586) when they were filed. Evidence submitted with 11-7585 included a notarized statement from Wayne D. Johnson. The written statement was notarized in December 2007. Mr. Johnson states that the "Thornock Dam" has been in existence since 1864 and was included in a decree in 1889. He admits, however, that he has only owned and operated the land since 1942. Affidavits are sufficient evidence of priority only to the extent that they are based on personal knowledge (actual observations of the affiant). Mr. Johnson's statement is only sufficient to establish a priority date of 1942 because that is the beginning of his personal knowledge. A similar affidavit was submitted with claim 11-7586. Mr. Johnson states that the Thornock Dam was built in 1915 (which is a direct contradiction of his other affidavit). He also states that he has "seen this land irrigated personally since 1942." This affidavit would also support a 1942 priority date, but nothing earlier.

Please review the pamphlet and try to find physical or documentary evidence establishing a priority date for the water use described in the statutory claims. If the Thornock Dam has been an important irrigation feature in the community, there may be reference to its existence in old journals or town archives. The claimant ultimately bears the burden of proving the elements of his claim, including priority date. You may have difficulty finding evidence to support the priority dates listed in your statutory claims. Given this distinct possibility, it appears that you have three options with regard to your transfer applications:

Option 1: Locate and provide specific evidence supporting the priority dates listed in your statutory claims. Once sufficient evidence of priority is received, the department will finish the review of the statutory claims. This will likely include a field exam to verify the location of the existing points of diversion (listed in the claims), the number of acres irrigated, and the capacity of the delivery system. After the statutory claims have been validated, the transfer applications will be advertised to the public. If a transfer application is protested, the department will begin an administrative hearing process. If the transfer applications are not protested, they will be approved with conditions or will be denied.

Option 2: Locate and provide evidence of a later priority date. As stated above, the evidence already in the file would likely support a priority date of 1942. You may not be able to find reliable evidence tracing back to the early priority dates claimed. However, you may find evidence supporting a priority date earlier than 1942. Once sufficient evidence of any priority is received, the department will complete the field examination of the statutory claims and will finalize the transfer process as described above. This alternative may be less preferable, however, because the priority date of your statutory claim must be changed to agree with the evidence provided before the transfers can be considered. Any changes to the priority dates made by the department constitute a final administrative determination of the priority date.

Option 3: If you are unable to find any proof of priority dates or do not want to invest the time to track down evidence or do not want to have a late priority date affixed to your statutory claim, you can always withdraw the transfers. This can be done by sending the department a letter officially withdrawing the transfers. Although you will not be able to adjust your water delivery systems as contemplated in the transfers, you will at least preserve the priority date associated with your statutory claims for the time being. You should be aware, however, that if an adjudication is ever held in the Bear River drainage, claimants will be expected to provide proof of priority date. Because you will likely have to validate the priority dates associated with your claims at some point in the future, it may be worthwhile to locate whatever evidence may exist today and add it to your statutory claim files.

To summarize, your transfer applications have been held by the department because they involve statutory claims and will require a detailed review before they can be approved. The department is beginning the process of reviewing some of these held transfers. The first part of the review of your transfers is establishing the validity of the priority dates listed in your statutory claims. You are officially being asked to provide sufficient evidence supporting your claimed priority dates. If you are unable to establish valid priority dates, the department is ultimately unable to approve the transfers and they will be voided. WHEREAS, heretofore the Utah Power & Light Company, a corporation of Maine, and its predecessors-in-interest, purchased of Christian Sorensen and Matine (sometimes pronounced and spelled "Tena") Sorensen, his wife, of Ovid, Bear Lake County, Idaho, approximately twenty-nine acres situate in the easterly part of Lots One and Two, Section 18 Township 13 South, Range 44 East Boise Base & Meridian and Lot 4 of Section 7 in said Township and Range, and in said County; and

WHEREAS, said Sorensens, hereinafter called second parties, own and are in possession of said Lots, save and except the portions thereof heretofore purchased by the Oregon Short Line Railroad Company, a corporation, and said Utah Power & Light Company, and its predecessors-in-interest; and

WHEREAS, said Lots are traversed by sloughs and water channels, through which flows certain waters of Paris Creek, Ovid Creek, and drainage from other lands, to and into the Outlet Canal of said Utah Power & Light Company, hereinafter called the first party; and

WHEREAS, second parties desire the hereinafter mentioned improvements to be constructed on Lots One and Two aforesaid, and second party is willing and prepared to construct said improvements so that water diverted and impounded thereby may be turned and flow westerly and northerly from said improvements and lands adjacent thereto, instead of flowing as now, during the spring flood and early summer flood seasons directly into said Outlet Canal via bed of Natural Outlet;

NOW, THEREFORE, second parties for and in consideration of the constructing said improvements by first party, at its sole cost, and for the sum of Twenty Five Dollars to them now paid by first party, do hereby covenant and agree for themselves, their heirs and assigns, with first party, its successors and assigns, as follows:

1. To grant, and hereby do grant, unto first party, its successors and assigns, the easement, right and privilege (a) to construct, wholly at its own costs, on and over Lots One and Two of Section 18 Township 13 South, Range 44 East Boise Base & Meridian, Bear Lake County, Idaho, dykes and a dam to be situate along the following described line: Beginning at a point on the southern boundary of Lot 2, Section 18 aforesaid,

Also a spillway canal and gate in the immediate vicinity of "Sorensen's Slough", near the confluence of same with the Natural Outlet in Lot Two aforesaid; and (b) by said improvements, and others situate on the lands of other land-owners, to divert, release and impound upon, from and over said Lots waters now and/or in the future upon or flowing thereto. None of said dykes or said dam is to be higher at the crest thereof than five thousand nine hundred twenty-four feet above sea level, and the dimensions thereof (other than the above-mentioned permitted extreme height) are to be as may be determined by first party; and (c) to take from said Lots earth (in the immediate vicinity of said improvements) necessary for use in the construction thereof; and (d) to enter at will upon said Lots to construct said improvements and to exercise and enjoy this easement.

2. To maintain said improvements after construction thereof, so that the waters flowing to said improvements and impounded thereby will flow westerly and northerly from said Lots One and Two, save and except after irrigation season when being released through said spill-way canal and gate.

In consideration of the foregoing, first party covenants and agrees with second parties, that it will without delay construct said improvements, to-wit: the dam, dykes, spill-way canal and gate above mentioned, and will do so wholly at its own cost.

It is mutually understood and agreed by and between the parties hereto that by the construction of said improvements and the payment of said sum of money and the execution and delivery of this instrument-in-writing, all contentions, differences and issues between the parties hereto arising or to arise out of the construction, maintenance and/or operation in Bear Lake County aforesaid, of the Outlet Canal aforesaid by first party, its successors or assigns, and/or of its other improvements in said County situate, other than the improvements first above mentioned, are compromised and forever adjusted and settled, and all accounts between the parties hereto are likewise and for same consideration hereby adjusted and settled, save and except as to such sum of money as may become due from first party to second parties as purchase price of lands, within said Lots, heretofore by first party or its predecessors-in-interest purchased of second parties.

Re: Applications for Transfer 74806, 74807, and 74808

Dear Mr. Hunzeker,

On August 12, 2010, I sent a letter discussing the status of three transfer applications before the department (74806, 74807 and 74808). I explained that the three beneficial use claims listed in the transfers would need to be verified by the department before the transfers could be processed or approved. The first step in validating the three statutory claims is to establish the priority dates associated with the claims. The August 2010 letter asked you to provide specific evidence of priority date for each of the claims.

On October 18, 2010, Keith Wilson from Rocky Mountain Environmental dropped off a stack of papers at our office. There was no cover letter from Mr. Wilson nor any explanation of the documents or how they relate to the statutory claims. I have spent some time reviewing the documents submitted. Unfortunately, the documents do not provide any additional support for the three statutory claims in question (11-4095, 11-7585, and 11-7586). It is important for you to understand why the documents submitted do not support the claims filed.

The first two pages of the packet (Teuscher Fax 2-3) describe notices posted by Ovid Agricultural and Irrigating Company for diversions from North Creek. Although the place of use described in the notices overlaps the place of use described in claim 11-4095 by 80 acres, the source listed is entirely different. The posted notices describe a point of diversion that is miles away from the point of diversion described in claim 11-4095. North Creek underwent a local adjudication in 1902. It is unlikely that you would be able to obtain a water right from North Creek with a priority date earlier than 1902.

The next part of the packet (Teuscher Fax 4-5) describes a notice posted by Nielsen, Peterson, and Quarrell? for two ditches out of Ovid Creek. The notice specifically identifies the acres to be irrigated. There is no overlap between the place of use described in the notice and the place of use claimed in 11-4095 and 11-7585. Therefore, the posted notice does not provide any support for the irrigation of the lands described in your claims. Please note that the water described in this posted notice has been claimed by other individuals who own property located within the place of use described in the notice.

The next part of the packet (Teuscher Fax 6-12) includes agreements relating to the Bear Lake Outlet Canal and the sloughs and dikes in that area. A number of the agreements are simply rights-of-way granted to Utah Power and Light Company by various land owners. These easements for the Bear Lake Outlet Canal and its associated dikes do not constitute evidence of diversion. Two of the agreements, No. 13696 (Teuscher Fax page 8) and No. 12078 (Teuscher Fax page 10), are of particular interest. The agreements gave Christian Sorensen the authorization to construct a dam to collect and divert overland flows away from the Bear Lake Outlet Canal. This structure is visible from aerial photography and is identified in the margin of Teuscher Fax page 11 as the "Thronock Dam." The agreements indicate that the dam was constructed to protect the dikes of the outlet canal from being eroded by waters in the surrounding sloughs. These documents provide evidence of the diversion of the slough water at the Thronock Dam. The point of diversion would be the Thronock Dam. These agreements refer to channels carrying water from Ovid Creek, but do not identify the channels specifically. The agreements do not authorize any diversion of water from Ovid Creek and do not describe the acres to be irrigated with the water diverted from the Slough. Therefore, these agreements do not provide support for your statutory claims out of Ovid Creek. You may want to consider amending your claims to list the Thronock Dam as the point of diversion and unnamed sloughs as the water source. Of course, this change would not give you any right to divert water from Ovid Creek.

The homestead patent to Anders Nielsen does not provide any evidence in support of your claims. The General Land Office record refers generally to any water rights, ditches, or canals that may be recognized under local laws. It is standard language included in most homestead patents and does not constitute evidence of a specific diversion or water right.

Finally, the Warranty Deed from Cook to Hunzeker & Sons Partnership refers back to the dikes and embankments constructed under the authority of the Utah Power and Light agreements. This is further evidence that the dikes and embankments, including the Thronock Dam, were constructed to collect and divert slough waters around the Bear Lake Outlet. This warranty deed does not refer to Ovid Creek or to any diversion structures on Ovid Creek.

To summarize, before your transfers can be processed, the statutory claims listed in the transfers must be validated by the department, including the priority dates claimed. Mr. Wilson from Rocky Mountain Environmental collected a number of documents. However, none of the documents provided support the claims in question. The documents provided are related to activity on upper North Creek and sloughs near the Bear Lake Outlet, not the middle section of Ovid Creek. As it stands, we have no evidence of priority associated with statutory claim 11-4095. The only evidence of priority associated with statutory claims 11-7585 and 11-7586 are the affidavits from Mr. Wayne Johnson, that state that he had personal knowledge of the irrigation practices in the area since 1942. These affidavits may support a priority date of 1942 for claims 11-7585 and 11-7586.

Your options remain similar to those outlined in the August, 2010 letter. You can continue to search for specific evidence supporting the priority dates listed in your statutory claims. You can move forward with the evidence available at this time (Statutory claims 11-7585 and 11-7586 would receive a 1942 priority date and a field exam will confirm the extent of current beneficial use. Statutory claim 11-4095 would be dropped from the transfers.). Or, you can withdraw the transfers and wait to make the changes contemplated by the transfers until your water rights are adjudicated by a court. You can also amend claims 11-7585 and 11-7586 to list the source as "unnamed sloughs" and the point of diversion as the Thornock Dam. If you choose this option, the claims may receive a priority date of 1915, but the claims and any transfers of the claims would be limited to the amount of water available in the sloughs, not in Ovid Creek.

I originally set a 60-day time period to collect evidence. I will extend this collection period by another 30 days. Please provide additional evidence of priority, or withdraw the transfers, or notify our office that you wish to proceed with the existing evidence on or before November 20, 2010. If we do not receive a response by November 20, 2010, we will take that to mean that you are no longer interested in pursuing the transfers and will likely take steps to void the transfer applications.

Thank you for your continued cooperation in this matter. Feel free to contact me with any questions you may have.

Sincerely,
