This is the confirmation I promised. The Department received a mailing tube from your office today. I have the 2 Exhibit B sheets on my side table.

Michelle:

We're having exhibit b copied today at 4:00, and hope to have it in the mail today.

Thanks,

Rob,

I have checked around a bit since I called your office. Although the front desk personnel remembers receiving the mailing tube, she did not go as far as pulling the drawings out to date-stamp them. Rather than stamp them inappropriately, she left them in the tube for Jeff Peppersack to retrieve. I can confirm that the three sheets drawn by Benton Engineering and stapled together as Exhibit A were not date-stamped when I did my inventory today.

Jeff Peppersack said he only remembers 3 sheets. He does not seem to have extra drawings lying about his office.

I have not exhausted all the possibilities for way-laying a document between your place and ours but I think I've examined the obvious ones.

I have been assigned to assist Jeff with the reinstatement of this permit. We will welcome a copy of Exhibit B, but in the interim, I have asked our support staff to recreate the permit file and to bar-code it to me.
