The Lemhi Little Springs diversion elimination project involves the elimination of the four lower irrigation diversions on Lemhi Little Springs. These diversions are of key importance to the success of all the restoration work in the Little Springs area. Water Master Rick Sager said at a meeting that if we don't fix the diversion problem at the mouth of Little Springs that all the work that is being done and proposed to be done will not amount to anything.

The Snyder water right #74-01576 with a priority right of 6-5-1885 for 5.410 cfs of water and water right #74-01574 with a priority date of 8-20-1925 for 0.28 cfs of water are the water rights that are proposed to transfer. The intent is to transfer these water rights from Lemhi Little Springs to the Lemhi River at the L-47 diversion. IDWR stream flow gages are located above the Little Springs diversions and at the mouth of Little Springs where it enters the Lemhi River.

The problems with these diversions are referenced in the 2009 Trout Unlimited Little Springs Creek Restoration Partnership Project Biological Assessment. Pages 6,19,30,35,36,37,38,39,40,41,47 and 48 all make reference to the diversions as being fish barriers.

The Lemhi Little Springs diversion elimination project involves the elimination of the four lower irrigation diversions on Lemhi Little Springs. These diversions are of key importance to the success of all the restoration work in the Little Springs area. Water Master Rick Sager said at a meeting that if we don't fix the diversion problem at the mouth of Little Springs that all the work that is being done and proposed to be done will not amount to anything.

The Snyder water right #74-01576 with a priority right of 6-5-1885 for 5.410 cfs of water and water right #74-01574 with a priority date of 8-20-1925 for 0.28 cfs of water are the water rights that are proposed to transfer. The intent is to transfer these water rights from Lemhi Little Springs to the Lemhi River at the L-47 diversion. IDWR stream flow gages are located above the Little Springs diversions and at the mouth of Little Springs where it enters the Lemhi River.

The problems with these diversions are referenced in the 2009 Trout Unlimited Little Springs Creek Restoration Partnership Project Biological Assessment. Pages 6,19,30,35,36,37,38,39,40,41,47 and 48 all make reference to the diversions as being fish barriers.
