Mr Goodell –

There is one more piece of information needed to complete your application. The applicant is required to identify the water bearing zone for ground water applications in Basin 63. We include this information in the legal notice and in the permit itself. Here are suggestions as to how to do that.

- 1 – contact drillers who will be familiar with the area
- 2 – search the well logs on the department website which is www.idwr.idaho.gov
- 3 – contact consultants who can help you determine the water bearing zone. I have attached a list of consultants here.

The information must be submitted in writing. It can be in an email.

Please submit the requested information for application processing to continue. You may seek additional time to provide the information by making a written request to interrupt processing for up to six months. Your response including the requested information or a request for more time to seek the information must be received by May 15, 2009. The application will be voided with out a timely written reply.

Thanks.

This email is in reference to the application for permit you filed with IDWR on 4/11/08. The application has been assigned to me for review and processing. A scanned copy of the application is attached here.

The application has some deficiencies and does not meet the minimum requirements for an application. As such, I cannot continue to process it until the following deficiencies are corrected.

Item # 6 [a] - description of diversion works

[c] information about the proposed well can be obtained from a well driller in your area

Item # 10 – item must be answered

Item # 12 – item must be answered

Item # 13 – requests a map clearly identifying the place of use, point of diversion. The map that you faxed to IDWR is totally illegible. Please provide a legible map with the required elements.

The original of the application must be revised because IDWR must have a document with original signatures. Please call me so we can set an appointment for you to come in and correct the application.
