Subject: WD Fees in prior years and upgrade fees required as of today

Keith,

From what I have been able to determine, this is the situation as far as well drilling fees are concerned. Wells have to be upgraded to whatever the fee for non-domestic is as of the date of application to upgrade.

Any well drilled before 7/1/1997 would require more than a $125.00 upgrade fee.

Prior to 7/1/1987 - no permits required - therefore no upgrade fee required.

From 7/1/1987 through 6/30/1990 the fee for a single family domestic well was $10. Upgrade to non-domestic requires $190.00.

From 7/1/1990 through 6/30/1997 the fee for a single family domestic well was $35. Upgrade to non-domestic requires $165.00.

From 7/1/1997 to the present time, the fee for a single family domestic well is $75. Upgrade to non-domestic requires $125.00.

[Apparently we started charging $75 per well for single family domestic use with up to but not more than 1/2 acre of any lawn, garden and/or landscaping, at the same time that we started issuing the metal tags - 7/1/1997.]

Hopefully this will be helpful.

If everything seems to be coming your way, you're probably in the wrong lane.
