d) ☒ Additional comment:

I am a little uncomfortable with this swap scenario where no hydrologic analysis is required simply because the same acres / volume are traded farm-to-farm. If we were to apply the priority-based analysis which was applied to recent offsetting transfer packages, we might in fact see an impact under a curtailment scenario, where early rights were transferred from north to south and would then be allowed to continue pumping in close proximity to the Snake River. The amounts being transferred N to S in this scenario are small and there might not be an impact greater than the 2AFA threshold.
