NAME OF PARTY Mr. Gary WebbEMPLOYEE Corda Patterson

RE: Mr. Webb called in response to our letter of November 12, 1975. He stated that he began using water from the Spring prior to 1971. He lived in a mobile home when he began using the water, but recently finished building a house in the same area in which he is now living.

I suggested that he file a Claim to a Water Right, also informing him that it was not mandatory to do so and that a Claim simply recorded a water right. He requested a Claim form which I mailed to him today.

Dear Mr. Webb:

I am somewhat uncertain of the sequence of events concerning the development of the Spring on your property. Perhaps an explanation of the laws will solve your problem. If not, I would suggest that you give me a call so that we may discuss fully the situation and decide what is necessary.

A water right is established by the act of diverting and beneficially using water for the use of any water from a surface source that started prior to May 20, 1971. Any new use or expansion of use that occurs after that date must have an Application for Permit to appropriate water filed with the Department of Water Resources as a prerequisite.

As I understand it, some use of water occurred before 1971, but some additional use has been started since that date, so a water right would exist for part of the use of the Spring and would not exist for a part of the use.

I hope this clarifies the situation. If I can be of any further assistance, please contact me.

Message

I purchased a piece of property May 1-73 with a spring on it. The construction of the spring was done about 1970 including reservoir and water lines. In 1973 I built an additional home on the property. The spring to my knowledge has never been filed on. The person who developed never filed any way and he had lived there several years.

My question is should I file for an application for permit or a claim to a Water Right. I have a permit form.

Thank you

Ray Webb
