In February of 1983, we had a well drilled by Chelan Drilling. The well driller told us he was required to register every well he drilled in Boise within 15 to 30 days. He had a briefcase full of papers and kept a log so we were under the impression that this had been done.

The company has gone into bankruptcy since that time and we have no way to contact them or have any idea of the driller's whereabouts.

The well was not connected, due to costs at that time and my husband's unexpected unemployment. We are in a position now to connect the well and wish to retire here. Upon checking about the registration it appears the well has never been registered. What can we do to remedy this situation? The well was driven to 160 feet and a 6 inch steel casing was used.

We would certainly appreciate any help you could give us and would be more than willing to do whatever is necessary to get the well registered.

Sincerely,

Janet Bernhart
