Lori,

I talked to Darrel Rhead yesterday. I explained to him the sequence of events that need to take place regarding the water rights. I told him that the processing of the transfer would resume once we get the CUP approval from the county. The transfer processing could take several months. Mr. Rhead is anxious to get moving on the project, but I told him that trying to push the water rights would not get us very far and it would be best to let it progress as I outlined. He agreed. As soon as we hear from the County, I'll let you know. Thanks Lori.

Thank you for the update on Rhead Dairy Steve. I will hold the transfer application until I hear from you or 90 days, whichever comes first.

Lori,

The Elmore County Planning and Zoning will continue the hearing process for the Rhead Dairy on March 2, 2005. I believe no new testimony will be heard, but they will assimilate all of the findings. If they make the determination that night, they have 14 days to write the permit. Realistically, if the permit is granted, the document itself will not be available until about March 16, 2005. Once I have that document, I will submit the response to your questions on impacts to water rights, local public interest and local economy.

If I learn anything different, I will contact you.
