Yes, I have a copy of that - I had to scan it but it's attached. Basically, the only surface water that is in WD130 right now is that in B36 that is not in 36A. I do have one single spring diversion that falls between the north boundary of 36A, and the 36/37 basin line. Doesn't really "fit" anywhere but it's basin 36. That surface stuff in 37 south of Bliss is still in this time warp, required to report to the West Measurement District (therefore perhaps some 42-701 language is more appropriate?), surrounded and/or overlapped by WaterDistricts (including 130) but not administered by any of them..... you might ask Carter where we're at with the Director's report for that area.

thanks for looking into it.

Cindy,

Sounds like we should fix this one. From time to time we get confused about what is in and what is out. I think our logic was that this is akin to a spring that is not in WD 36-A or WD 37 but is in the area where you are administering GW (and springs?) tributary to the Snake. Do you have a copy of the 1/8/2003 order? It might help us keep things straight. I couldn't find it in PowerDocs or on your web site.

Thanks.

Shelley

Shelley,
Could you look into this one please?

Thanks,
Jeff

I received a copy of this license which contains regulatory language with respect to Water District 130. Birch Creek is not presently regulated as a part of Water District 130. Basin 37 surface rights were not included in the Jan 8, 2003 Order revising the boundaries of Water District 130 to include certain ground water rights from Basin 37. To my knowledge we have not yet petitioned for interim administration for this sub-set of rights, nor has Karl determined which water district they should be a part of. Shouldn't this license be corrected and re-issued?
