1. The maximum annual volume of water to be diverted under the rights identified herein shall not exceed 2886.4 acre feet.
2. A totalizing flow meter and lockable controlling works of a type acceptable to the Department shall be permanently installed and maintained as part of the diverting works prior to diverting water for fish propagation.
3. The maximum number of acres of land irrigated under the combined rights herein shall not exceed 744 acres.
4. Evaporation of water in storage shall be determined by using the following rates (feet) per month as identified in Department memo dated 12/11/86:

5. Violation of the conditions identified herein will be cause for the Department to void the approval of this transfer and cancel permit 51-7277.
 6. A portion of the water diverted under rights covered by this transfer will be diverted to storage for irrigation following use of the water for fish propagation under Permit No. 51-7277.

MEMORANDUM

TO: Gary
FROM: Jim
DATE: March 19, 1987
RE: 2 Applications for Transfer & 1 Application for Permit Filed
by Annabelle Erwin

Overview

In 1984, Annabelle Erwin filed an Application for Permit to use groundwater for fish propagation, No. 51-7277. However, since the proposed use is within the GrandView-Bruneau Groundwater Water Management Area, the application was not processed pending outcome of studies to determine available groundwater resource.

Recently, with the assistance of Dave Tuthill, two applications for transfer were prepared which would adjust the use of water of existing rights from the same point of diversion so that the diversion of water for fish propagation would not result in an increase of volume withdrawn from the groundwater aquifer.

One transfer application proposes to change the nature of use of five water rights to allow water diversion during the non-irrigation season. The water diverted would be stored and released the following year for irrigation. The other transfer application reduces a water right to compensate for evaporation losses occurring from the stored water.

Issues

While the concept appears to be sound, information concerning actual irrigation under the existing water rights and actual rate of flow from the well(s) appear to conflict.

For example, the five water rights identified in Transfer No. 3294, according to the water right descriptions, irrigate a total of 919 acres with a total of 13.48 cfs. This is simply not accurate.

The actual capacity of the well appears never to have been greater than 7.7 cfs and information supplied by Mr. Erwin shows recent flows ranging between 5.24 cfs and 6.8 cfs. Mr. Erwin also provided information stating that he has irrigated 744 acres rather than 919 acres. It is not clear if 919 acres were ever irrigated. The water right licenses were originally prepared without taking the capacity limitations into account.

Also, there may be a problem of accounting for storage evaporation losses from different wells than the well proposed for fish propagation.

RECORDED
INDEXED
MAY 12 1987

The Department's experience in the Banbury Hot Springs Area has shown wells located in close proximity to each other are not necessarily connected to the same aquifer.

Little information is known concerning the similarity of the wells identified on the two transfer applications other than the wells identified in Transfer No. 3293 are not artesian and wells proposed for fish propagation are.

Per conversation with Dave Tuthill, the main reason for using this water right is because it had land already set aside in the A.S.C.S. Conservation Reserve Program.

In conclusion, I am not certain that the Department has a clear picture of what lands have been actually irrigated by the wells identified in Transfer No. 3294. If the acres of irrigation have been reduced, as a minimum a listing of the acres irrigated should be identified on the transfer rather than as now proposed.

The conditions presently proposed on the transfer applications are generic in nature and do not attempt to modify the rights to reflect present rate of flow nor to limit right to actual acres irrigated.

The application for permit conditions appear okay with the exception of the item identified in my memo of 3/10/87.

Adjustments

Per telecon with Mr. Erwin, he confirmed the suspicion that the water he filed the two transfer applications on were from different aquifer zones.

Based upon this information, adjustments were made to the conditions of approval on the transfer application containing the five rights on the artesian wells and a refund of the filing fee was given on the other transfer application.

See the transfer conditions of approval for methodology used for determining reservoir water evaporation.

SUBJECT: Evaporation Losses from Aquaculture Ponds in the Grandview Area. Transfer in the name of Annabelle Erwin.

The evaporation losses calculated by the consultant[^] seem quite reasonable. Basically, the estimates were derived by using pan evaporation data for the Parma Exp. Sta. weather site for the May through September period, estimating values for the other months of the year, and applying these amounts to the appropriate water surface areas during the year. (Dr. Roy Mink)

As a check on the two years of pan evaporation data used in the notes, May through September values for a seven year period were computed. The totals were virtually identical, with 40.4 inches for the shorter period and 41.6 inches for the seven year average. Evaporation was assumed to be zero for December and January, with values for the other months interpolated between the September and May observed values. Thus, the monthly and annual values were:

JAN	0.0 in.	JUL	8.9
FEB	1.8	AUG	9.0
MAR	3.5	SEP	6.6
APR	5.2	OCT	5.0
MAY	7.0	NOV	2.5
JUN	8.9	DEC	0.0
ANNUAL TOTAL			58.4

MICROFILMED

MAY 12 1987

Assuming no evaporation during December and January seems a little odd, but may be acceptable for several reasons: First, the annual total seems reasonable. The 58.4 inches of annual evaporation computed by the consultant is very close to the average annual reference or potential evapotranspiration of 57.4 inches for Grandview by Allen and Brockway, 1983. The reference ET does not include values for the winter months, but does cover a longer period of the year than only the growing season. Also the ratio of the off-season (Nov. - Apr.) evaporation to the growing season evaporation is about the same as that referenced in U.S. Weather Bureau Technical Paper No. 37. This tends to indicate that the off season total is about the right magnitude, just distributed differently. The second reason is that, based on observations of other ponds, winter evaporation losses seem very small. Calm wind conditions, which often occur during December and January allow a humid layer of air to remain over the ponds, thereby reducing water loss. In these conditions, diffusion is the dominant process of water movement from the pond to the atmosphere. Under windy conditions (typical of the growing season) convection, which is many times more effective than diffusion, will be the dominant process. A third reason why zero evaporation in December and January is believable is that any evaporation is small enough to be offset by precipitation during these months.

Normally, pan evaporation rates are reduced when applied to large bodies of water. The consultant's calculations used unadjusted pan rates. This method seems appropriate considering the small size of the ponds compared to a lake and the elevated temperature of the water. The 10 acre size pond will act more like an evaporation pan than a lake: Wind will advect considerable energy from surrounding arid areas to the ponds, with a resulting evaporation greater than that occurring from a large body of water. Warm water ponds will also evaporate at a faster rate than a natural lake because there is more energy available in the warm water.

Annual evaporation losses for the proposed project are as follows:

	Evap. Rate	Water Area	Evap. Volume
Nov	2.5 in	60 ac	12.5 ac-ft

Route #3,

Dear Mr. Aganbroad:

The above numbered permits and license are all for water from the same well.

This is to advise you that proofs have been made on G-27697 and G-26034 and are ready to be processed prior to licensing.

However, 21748 and G-25381 have higher priorities. Also G-25381 is in the name of Mrs. Edna Aganbroad, Brumley, Idaho.

Now, if license is issued on G-27697 and G-26034, that along with license G-26116 will cover all the water delivered by the well and none will be left available for 21748 and G-25381.

In view of the above facts will you please send in a letter to the department relinquishing back to the state the last two mentioned permits.

Yours truly,
