Statement Concerning Claim to Water Right on Shingle Creek

From information from Bill Howard who was a friend of and wintered with Eddy's, the irrigation ditch was put on the place in 1886 on Shingle Creek. The original ditch was built by James Eddy, Sr. They resided on the property until 1899 when the property was acquired by Jack Morrison and his sister, Emma Shelby. Both Eddy's and Morrison used water for agricultural irrigation and stock water. In 1916 Chester Irwin sold the place to Charlie Clay and it was the headquarters for a large sheep operation. Irwin had purchased the place about 1913 or 1914. My dad, Tom Carrey moved on the place about 1940 and continued to farm the place. I moved to the place in 1943 and continued the farming, irrigation and stock raising. In 1949, I sold the place to Clyde and Bill DeVeney and to my personal knowledge they have continued to irrigate for farming and to use water for domestic livestock.

I knew Bill Howard personally as well as all others who lived on the place except for James Eddy, Sr., so can personally state that Shingle Creek has been used for irrigation and stock water steadily from 1886 to the present time.
