Reservoir Storage: April 7

	1996	1995	30 Year Average
Cascade	443,369	471,369	344,791
Deadwood	117,898	69,199	92,382
Total	561,267	540,568	437,173

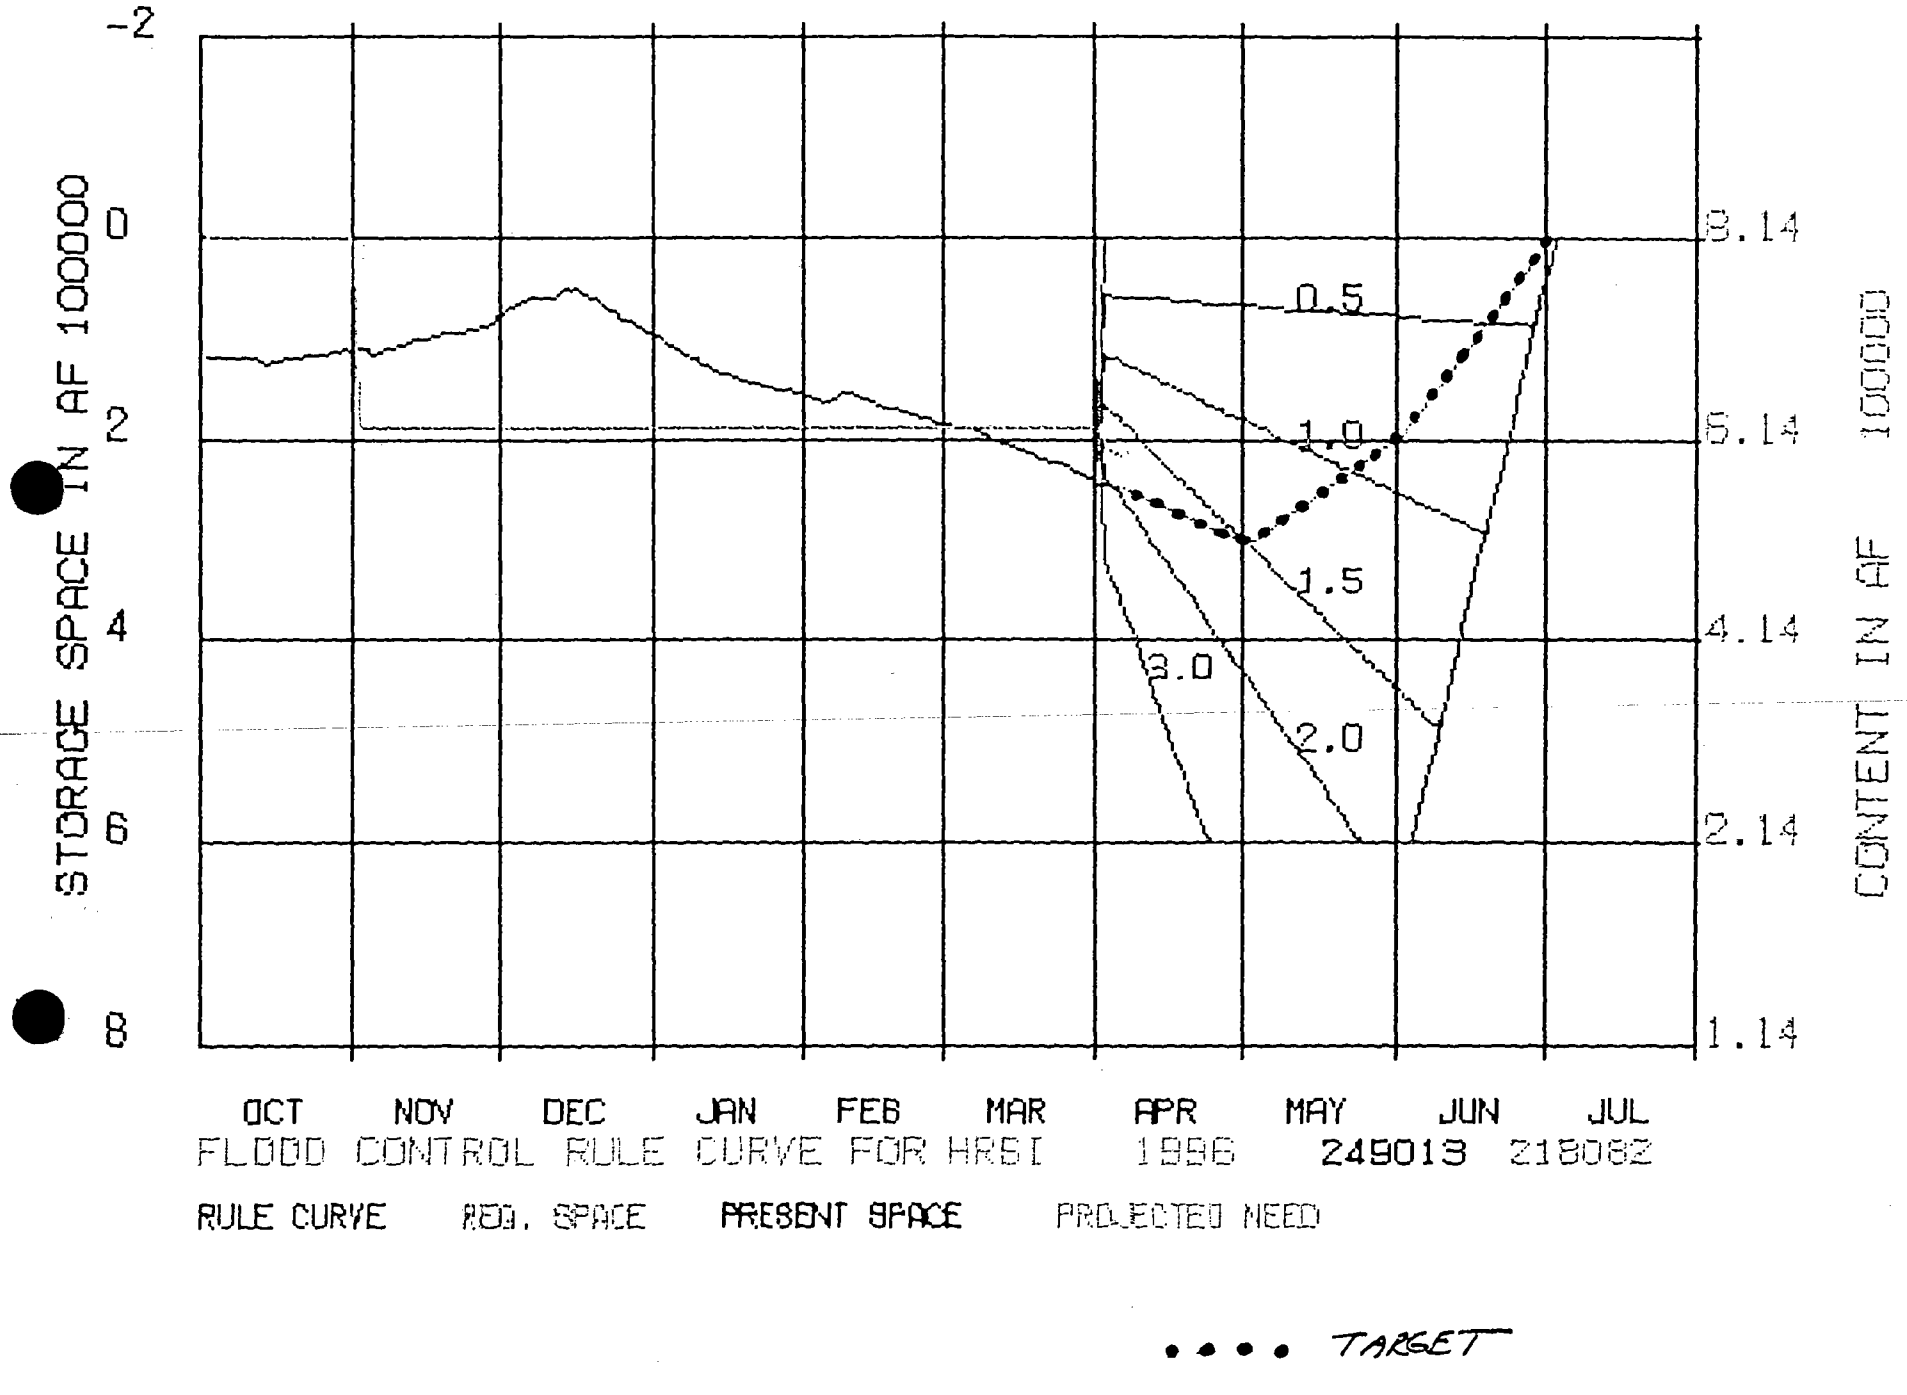

April-July Runoff:	1996*	1995	30 Year Average
Horseshoe Bend	1,746,500	2,079,442	1,638,688
Cascade	527,500	647,237	518,600
Deadwood	149,400	173,976	135,400

* (forecast volume)

Reservoir storage is 128% of average for the date and 104% of the storage on this date last year. The 1996 runoff forecasts are 107% of average at Horseshoe Bend, 102% of average at Cascade Reservoir, and 110% of average at Deadwood Reservoir.

The Cascade Reservoir release is expected to remain at powerplant capacity of about 2,200 cfs for the next several weeks and then adjusted as necessary to conform to the flood control rule curves. The operation will be similar to last year except that lower releases are projected in May and June since we have more space in the reservoir now compared to last year and a lower runoff volume is forecast compared to 1995. The Deadwood release will be maintained at about 300 cfs for the next several weeks and adjusted as necessary to conform to the rule curves.

Cascade and Deadwood reservoirs are expected to fill in mid to late June.
