RE: Field Inspection of LaGrand Spatig Property
DATE: August 9, 1976

At the request of LaGrand Spatig, I inspected his property and system of drains and spring developments and assisted him in filling out an application for permit and a claim.

The water which was claimed is the combined output of a spring and a tile drain which is carried by a 6-inch concrete pipeline along the upper edge of a field where turnouts are installed for irrigation.

The field is very steep and was planted to wheat and not under irrigation when inspected. The pipeline terminates at a corral where the water is used for stock. The remaining water flows into Sheep Creek.

The application for permit covered water developed from a system of tile drains placed in wet spots in his fields and conducted into a draw through which it flows into Sheep Creek. The water results from seepage from the Preston-Whitney Canal at the upper edge of the fields.

I made no measurement of the water, but Mr. Spatig told me that he had a measurement made by the SCS the day before my inspection and they told him that 0.36 c.f.s was running into Sheep Creek.

He said he had had the water measured at various times and the system discharged as much as 3.00 c.f.s. in the early spring.
