Hi Mark,

I know we were playing a little bit of phone tag earlier today, so I thought it might be helpful to e-mail you a map of what I'm seeing and explain my question here. I see you completed an online Notice of Claim for domestic use of your well. The map you drew online indicates a very large place of use when compared to the parcel I located nearby in your name. If you take a look at the attached map, you'll see a large shape outlined in bold light blue. This shape is what we received indicating where you are using the water (your Place of Use or POU), and almost directly in the center of the map is a light blue dot in the middle of your street. This dot is what we received indicating where your well is located (your Point of Diversion or POD). The claim didn't actually have any indication of your property, or where it's located. I did a search using yours and Jennifer's name, and located a property close by. That is the small rectangular shape outlined in the bold light blue on the left side of the map, and it is Parcel Number RP000710120070A.

The questions I have for you specifically are as follows:

1. Does your shape for your POD & POU accurately reflect what you intended to claim?
 - a. If yes, do you now own the property where the place of use is located?
2. Is the location of your well accurately reflected in the claim?

If these shapes are not accurate, please take a look at the Amended Notice of Claim I prepared for you and attached to this e-mail. The amendments made to this claim only amend the POD & POU locations to be the GPS location we have on file for a well on Parcel Number RP000710120070A for POD and to indicate that Parcel Number RP000710120070A is your POU. All other aspects of your claim remain unchanged. If the Amended Notice of Claim accurately reflects what you intended to claim, please sign it and return it to our office either by mail or e-mail. No additional fee is required to amend this claim.

Thank you,

Greg Cooksey
