12. Remarks:

Priority Date Explanation:

This is the date given on the decree. Around 1966 Cub River washed out a section of Cub River Road and the path of the river changed. This made our diversion unusable. For the diversion to be made usable again, the Army Corps Of Engineers told my dad that he would have to shore up the river banks with concrete and create a check dam. Being one of the last users on the system, my father didn't have the financial means to make this happen. The other two users at the time of the washout transferred their rights to the upper canal across the road. We have not been able to use this water since the diversion point was destroyed.
