Response to #13 for Additional Comments:

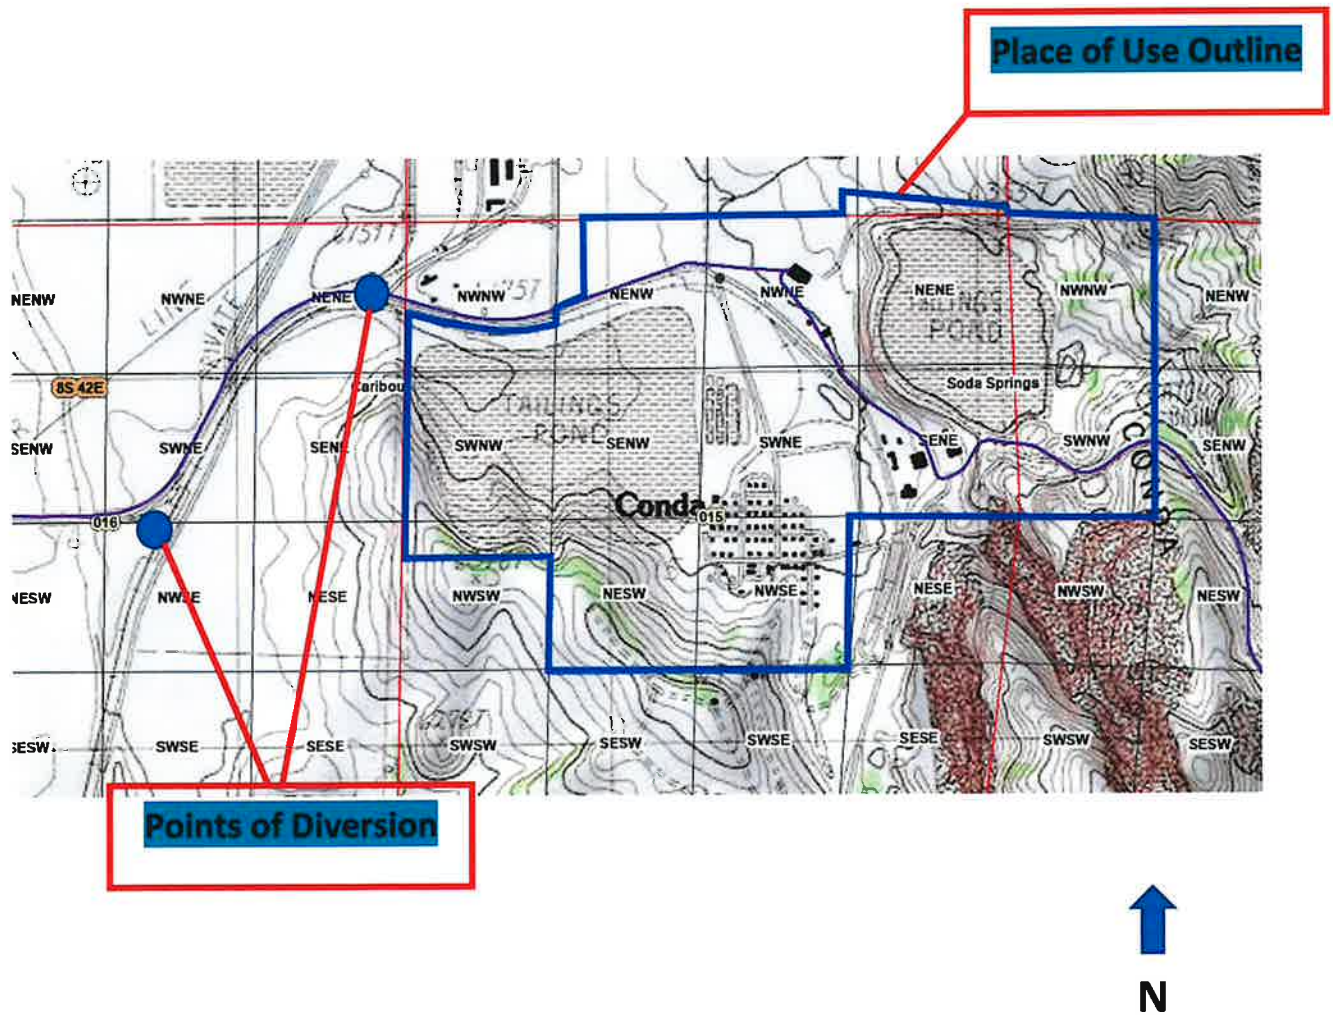

Water is used for processing and transporting ore and for the manufacturing fertilizer products. Industrial effluent is then used to transport gypsum to storage and land applied for raising crops. The crop land is a combination of land owned by claimant and land leased by claimant.

This water right was claimed in the Snake River Basin Adjudication and a Partial Decree was entered as IDWR water right no. 27-7126 on December 6, 2006. At some point, IDWR moved the boundary for IDWR Administrative Basin No. 27 resulting in claimant's source becoming situated within the Bear River Basin. This claim is being filed to preserve claimant's decreed appropriation under water right no. 27-7126 regardless of the boundary change. By filing this claim, claimant does not waive any rights to object to the source appropriated, nor is it an admission that claimant is acquiescing to IDWR's source or boundary change.
