    When I purchased the property the neighbor across the road told me that he began farming at around the same time that the original property owner for my property began farming. At this time is the best approximate date when the ditch was dug out and began irrigating the property. The person who constructed this ditch is 3 property owners before me before the statutory claim was filed. There is still an old farm rake on the property that dates back to the original farm use. The ditch is still there and being used.
