5. Description of diverting works:

Ezra Lakey dammed up the creek to create Lakey Reservoir. The water is piped from the Reservoir into a cement box that filters the water before sending it to the farm where we have a gravity fed sprinkler system. Originally we used hand lines, but we changed to two pivot lines in 1989. The overflow from the dam goes into a series of lakes below the dam. There used to be another point of diversion. The water was run through a trench and filled up a second reservoir that would be used to flood irrigate. Today that reservoir no longer exists and we no longer irrigate those fields.

12. Remarks:

Priority Date Explanation:

This the date that our grandpa, Ezra Lakey, claimed on the statutory claim. In 1961 Ezra received a Special Use Permit from the Forest Service to maintain the dam. We continue to maintain the dam today. The only changes we've made to the system is that we use two pivots as well as the hand lines, and there is only one diversion instead of two. We still irrigate the same ground as when the water use began.
