2025 Water Year
Water District #41

The 2025 water year in Rockland Valley closely resembled the previous year in overall supply and distribution. Most water users were able to exercise their full rights throughout the growing season, although some irrigators on the South Fork of Rock Creek experienced periodic shortages. Changes in ownership and ongoing irrigation improvements required added oversight within the district to educate new tenants and maintain accurate, consistent water measurement practices. While stretches of hot weather increased demand at times, timely late-summer moisture helped offset shortfalls. Overall, the season was productive and generally successful for the majority of water users.
