2014 Water Report

This has been an interesting year for the Irrigation District. The year started out looking fairly normal then November and December turned out to be dry January and February were where starting to turn back to normal then march was above normal. Then the spring April to June saw the driest since I have been involved with the District in the past 20 years.

The reservoir was at only 83% of capacity when we started deliveries in May and the stream flow was only at 35% of the 30 year average. We had about 500 acres that were not planted and another 200-300 acres that were not irrigated when we saw what the water supply was going to be.

The irrigation district installed two more pipelines replacing an open ditch for 3 miles this saved about 500 acre feet of water. They are also looking to install another 5-7 miles in the next few years to eliminate most of our high loss laterals. There were also another 250 more acres converted from flood to sprinkler irrigation bring the district to near 100% sprinkler irrigated.

We survived fairly well for most of the irrigation season by running a tight system and I don't think that we ever had over 2 cfs of water that was wasted out of the end of the canal system for the season. The reseivior lasted until the middle of august after which we delivered natural flow and ground water to a few farms until the end of September.

We can only hope that the upcoming year turns around and we can get back to a normal water supply.
