Kevin Rice, Water master

Discussed insurance. Bill Gattung has been in contact with Jan Hansen, of State Farm Ins , but as of this date, has not received any concrete information on this. Bill has also contact the State of Idaho Compensation Fund to check if contract water masters need to be covered under the State Compensation fund. Information will be forthcoming concerning this problem.

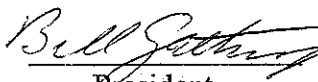

Henry Anderson brought out that there are people using water that we aware unaware of and who are not paying dues who should be included in the 75-B Water District. Mr. Anderson is checking out who these people are and will get back to us about it

Discussed "high water" users: Those who use high water have no rights to any water other than high or flood water, therefore, they are not required to pay dues.

Discussed the Williams Creek "high line" ditch is a privately owned ditch and was constructed and paid for by the Hodge's family. That property now belongs to Bill Gattung, Kevin Rice and Randy Capps. The high line ditch terminated approximately the center part of Capp's property and Williams Creek Road.

Dues: It was decided that the dues for this year will be raised to $75.00 to help pay the expenses of Water master and pending insurance. Kevin Rice will clean and inspect the ditch.

Meeting was called to adjournment by Kevin Rice and was seconded by Steve Simms.
